Business Methods

Business method patents are inventions that describe and claim rights to a method of doing business. In recent years, business method patents have become a rapidly growing area in the field of patents with respect to the number of patents filed in this area, the number business methods patents being litigated and the significant financial benefits associated with successful business method patents. Our attorneys have experience in counseling clients on how to best protect their innovations relating to business methods, whether it is related to computer implemented business methods or other types of business methods. From early stage counseling and patent acquisition to patent litigation and licensing, our attorneys have the necessary depth of experience to resolve an array of legal issues arising out of the complex area of business method patents.
