

Government

For decades, our firm has represented governmental entities and officials. We also have a long history of representing large and small companies, across every type of industry, in matters before all kinds of governmental entities. In addition, our attorneys include former school board members, councilpersons, judges, Assistant Attorneys General, Assistant County Prosecutors, members of the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio, Environmental Protection Agency attorneys, the former Chairman of the Federal Election Commission, a former Superintendent of Financial Institutions for the State of Ohio, Securities and Exchange Commission attorneys, and Internal Revenue Service attorneys.

The first-hand experience of our attorneys, gained in acting as governmental employees and officials and in representing both governmental entities and private parties appearing before governmental bodies, has given our attorneys a deep understanding of governmental processes and allowed them to build relationships that are an invaluable asset to our clients. As a result, our lawyers have developed unique insight into the issues and challenges facing governments. We apply that insight, experience, and knowledge on behalf of our clients, whether they are themselves governmental bodies or officials or are businesses or individuals who seek to do business with governmental entities, are subject to governmental regulation, or face investigation by or litigation against a government agency.
