

“Summer associates are given real work on our cases. It gives them an opportunity to understand what it will be like to work here.”

Summer Program

We hire law students who have outstanding academic credentials and writing skills and desire to add value by their commitment to excellence in the practice of law.

During our summer program, law students are treated like lawyers. The work that is assigned to law students would normally be completed by young associates. At the end of the summer, each law student will have a greater appreciation for the practice of law in general and at Vorys in particular. We seek colleagues who want to personally contribute to a firm culture that is solidly grounded in teamwork, mutual support, and a commitment to excellence.

Each fall, we devote considerable effort to selecting second-year law students for our summer program. Our lawyers interview law students at many national law school campuses and job fairs, and we also consider applications from exceptional students attending other schools. We also welcome direct applications for regular associate positions from outstanding third-year law students and judicial clerks.
