We have successfully defended professional clients in lawsuits and in disciplinary proceedings and bring significant experience, sensitivity, creativity and dedication to our clients to such engagements. We know that professional clients are not a “one size fits all”. They may differ materially in their reaction to and tolerance for reputational risks, media attention, potential litigation, cost and other considerations, given the distinct cultures of their firms and the personalities and circumstances of the individuals who are involved. Vorys’ attorneys work shoulder-to-shoulder with our professional clients to provide effective, client-focused services that are tailored to the specific business models and interests of those clients. Our goals in such representations are to help clients through what is often a difficult personal process, to free up the client professionals to do what they do best – which is practice their profession – and to achieve the best possible result for our clients given their particular situation and interests.

Who We Represent

Attorneys in Vorys’ professional liability defense practice represent a variety of professionals, including accountants, architects, attorneys and law firms, brokers and financial planners, engineers, homeowners associations, insurers and insurance brokers, physicians, nurses social workers, hospitals, and other health care professionals, property management and real estate agencies and real estate agents in professional malpractice and tort litigation and in disciplinary proceedings and grievances.

What We Do

Vorys provides counseling and advice to help our professional clients potentially avoid ethical pitfalls and litigation with their clients and others. In addition, we proudly represent our professional clients in the full range of litigation:

- Malpractice claims
- Negligence claims
- Conflict of interest claims

- Breach of contract claims
- Fair Debt Collection claims
- Breach of fiduciary duty claims
- Other common law claims

We have also defended securities and financial clients in Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) investigations and in actions involving alleged violation of the Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act (RICO), federal securities laws and other similar state laws.

Accountants

Vorys regularly represents public accounting firms, the issuers of financial statements and individuals with responsibility for financial reporting in lawsuits involving accounting and auditing issues. Our practice in this area encompasses federal and state court actions in Ohio, Maryland, the District of Columbia, Virginia, Texas, Pennsylvania and California. Vorys has experience defending class actions and derivative cases. In these engagements, our attorneys have helped to create significant precedents with respect to the:

- Scope of accountants' liability to third parties
- Statute of limitations for accountants' liability claims
- Applicability of comparative negligence principles and contributory negligence to accounting services
- Pleading standards governing federal securities fraud claims against auditors
- Extent of gatekeeper liability under "fraud created the market" claims
- Various "fraud-on-the-market" issues

We also represent accountants and financial professionals in investigations by the SEC and state agencies. Specific accounting and auditing issues we have handled in recent representations include:

- Accounting for acquisitions
- Revenue recognition
- Insurance accounting
- Failure to detect errors and fraud
- Accounting for income taxes
- Asset impairment
- Contingent liabilities
- Restatement of financial statements
- Financial statement disclosure issues

Architects/Engineers

Vorys represents many design firms and architect and engineering professionals, from some of the highest-ranked Engineering News Record firms to recent start-ups and individual practitioners. On public and private projects, Vorys has successfully defended and resolved claims of personal injury, property damage, and purely economic loss due to alleged design defects, errors and omissions, permitting failures, and excessive control.

Our attorneys help design professionals mitigate risks and avoid future claims in the design, design development, construction specifications, contract administration, and construction management roles, and frequently are asked to lecture on architect/engineer liability. We also counsel companies and individuals facing licensing issues, investigations and disciplinary charges brought by state licensing boards such as the Ohio Engineers and Surveyors Board. - Providing analysis and proactive recommendations with respect to potential claims
- Assisting in the creation and implementation of claims avoidance policies
- Providing advice on insurance coverage

- Helping law firms to develop communication strategies in connection with claims that have attracted media attention

We have experience handling complex and difficult professional liability claims in a fashion that serves the best interests of our clients. We listen to our clients, are guided by their concerns and goals, resist taking a “one size fits all” approach to defending such claims, and pride ourselves on our focus on responsiveness and client service. We have defended professionals in litigation involving specialized areas such as patent, medical malpractice, estate planning, and business and commercial transactions. Because our firm has a diverse practice, we have resources from those other practices to enhance our approach to litigation and disciplinary proceedings specific to those specialized areas.

We bring decades of detailed knowledge and experience from our regular practice before the state and federal courts in the jurisdictions in which we practice. Our lawyers enjoy reputations for excellence and ethical representation with the state and federal judges in our jurisdictions and with our clients and colleagues because of our dedication, preparation, skills, and integrity. We are active in our local, state, and national organizations for lawyers, including the American Bar Association (ABA) and the Inns of Court. Many of our lawyers have been rated by Martindale-Hubbell as “AV Preeminent.”

We have tried legal malpractice cases in California, Washington, D.C., Maryland, New York, Ohio, Virginia and Washington, among other locations, and we have represented law firm clients in federal and state courts throughout the country.

Medical Malpractice

Our lawyers defend medical malpractice and health care lawsuits in courts throughout Ohio, Maryland, the District of Columbia and Virginia. We regularly represent hospitals and individual physicians in jury trials addressing complex medical issues and treatment, including cutting edge medical issues involving genetics and medical technology.

In addition, our lawyers advise hospitals, medical groups, nurses, physicians, social workers and clinics concerning issues of:

- Risk management
- Loss prevention
- Reporting under the federal National Practitioner Data Bank
- Ad hoc hearing presentations
- Reviewing staff privileges
- The requirements of the Health Care Quality Improvement Act

We also have counseled hospital and medical group quality assurance committees in the collection, use and presentation of quality assurance statistical information. Read more here.

Professional Licensing and Discipline

For physicians and other health care professionals, professional licensing and disciplinary matters may arise without significant advance notice.

We represent clients through accusations by patients, colleagues or others, as a result of normal oversight activities, or as a collateral consequence of medical malpractice litigation, credentialing disputes, fiscal audits by governmental and private insurers, health care fraud and abuse investigations or criminal prosecutions.

Our extensive experience in this area allows us to respond to all health care professional licensing board matters promptly and efficiently. Our lawyers have represented clients before health care professional licensing boards in a wide variety of matters, ranging from full-blown litigation of disciplinary actions attempting to revoke a practitioner's professional license or seeking to impose other sanctions to assistance in solving administrative problems that may pose risks to a practitioner's ability to obtain, or retain, his license.

All such matters are extremely important and must be handled carefully, prudently, and with discretion and a sense of perspective. Our lawyers provide creative and flexible representation tailored to our client's specific immediate and long-term interests.
