Chris is an associate in the litigation group in the Columbus office. His practice focuses on complex business, commercial, class action, and contract litigation. He has significant experience in counseling large commercial clients related to potential litigation, including breach of contract, statutory and regulatory compliance, and general best business practices. Chris also maintains a significant privacy and data security practice, advising some of the largest companies in the country on privacy compliance and technology. His work in the privacy and data security space includes drafting and negotiating hundreds of commercial agreements across a wide range of industries, the wholesale designing, documentation, and scaling of global data privacy and security compliance programs, and providing counsel on countless cutting-edge data privacy, digital advertising, and data security issues.

Chris received his J.D. from The Ohio State University Moritz College of Law, where he was the managing editor of the Ohio State Law Journal and a co-founder of The Ohio State Energy Law Society. He received a dual Bachelor's degree in finance and political science, magna cum laude from Gonzaga University.
