Craig Auge, a partner in the Vorys Columbus office and a member of the technology and intellectual property group, coordinated with InformationWeek to develop a slideshow on 8 common "gotchas" in technology contracting. According to InformationWeek, every business runs at least in part on technology, and the contracts for providing and obtaining that technology help to establish important, often long-term relationships. When they involve mission-critical products and services, the impact of a flawed contract can be devastating.
