Pamela Bresnahan, a partner in the Vorys Washington, D.C. office and head of the litigation group in that office, was quoted in a Corporate Counsel story titled “Looking for Top Law Firms’ Compliance Programs.” Bresnahan was quoted regarding the corporate and ethics compliance efforts of smaller law firms.

The story states:

“Pamela Bresnahan, an attorney who represents law firms in malpractice cases nationwide, said larger law firms rely on their general counsel or a designated risk management counsel to handle such issues. Firms smaller than 60 or so usually have a liaison person who works with a risk management counsel at the insurance carrier, added Bresnahan, of Vorys, Sater, Seymour and Pease in Washington, D.C.”
