Doug Matthews, partner in the Vorys Columbus office was quoted in a Law.com article titled, “Time for TAR: Where Experts Say Technology-Assisted Review is Today” on August 23, 2019.

The story states:

While TAR experts may be needed, the right ones aren’t always easy to find. Doug Matthews, partner at Vorys, Sater, Seymour and Pease LLP, stressed the importance of having a “really good partnership with your vendor” and being on the same page about what type of TAR process should be used. Yet this can be much easier said than done.

“Sometimes sales people will throw out terms because that’s what they think you want to hear,” Matthews said. He recalled a situation where his team wanted to use continuous active learning (TAR 2.0) on a document review, which the vendor said it could do. However, it turned out the vendor only had the capability to do TAR 1.0, much to the surprise of Matthew’s teams.
